

Muki Jankelowitz is a Jewish educator. Over the years he has taught and guided in many different contexts, including teaching and later directing the "Machon"- Institute for Diaspora Youth Leaders, being Director of Educational Services in the Israel Office of the JCC Association and Senior Educator on the JDC Buncher Jewish Community Leadership Program.

A licensed Tour Guide since 1993, Muki now works as a freelance guide and educator and has worked with youth and student Programs, Birthright, Synagogues, AIPAC and a wide range of Jewish organizations (including many groups from the Merage JCC). At the same time he has been involved in Curriculum writing and teacher training team for Nofim project Milken community High School in LA and other content writing projects.

Since 1995 he has also been guiding in Jewish Europe and been involved in the preparation of guides and materials.

Muki holds a BA in sociology and history from Wits University in Johannesburg and an honors degree in Biblical archaeology from the University of South Africa and an MA in Jewish Studies from the Schechter Institute in Jerusalem.

During the Covid 19 period, he has used the time to teach and guide on zoom, write programs and learn new material. He is looking forward to the restart of tourism in the coming months.

Originally from South Africa, he made Aliya in 1987. He has lived on Kibbutz Tuval, served as a combat medic and today lives in Modi'in with his wife, Mandy and sons, Shaked and Niv.
