Welcome our new Executive Director, David Lamden

David Lamden joins our Temple Shalom family in May. David is a graduate of the University of Arizona with a degree in Judaic Studies and has served Reform Jewish Congregations for over 30 years. He enjoys the Executive Director role because there is always plenty to do, it allows him to work with people, solve problems and be creative.

Why are you excited for the Executive Director role at Temple Shalom

The congregation has been blessed to have my friend and colleague, Steve Lewis, for 18 years as your Executive Director. During the 16 years I have known Steve, he has always talked about his wonderful congregation, Temple Shalom. Steve's love for the congregation is what made me consider applying for the position, and now, after meeting so many people and learning more about how the congregation lives their values, I am thrilled to become part of the congregational family.

Tell us about your journey to becoming our Executive Director

I started my Jewish Communal Service career as a Congregational Educator in Columbus, Ohio, serving two congregations over 12 years. Having always had an 'entrepreneurial side,' I thought it might be a nice evolutionary step to become an Executive Director, and I have never looked back. Over the last 16 years I have served three congregations – one in Paradise Valley, Arizona, one in Miami Beach, Florida and one in Houston, Texas.

What does a typical day look like?

There are no typical days! This is part of what I love... I'm never bored because there are so many different things to do and so many different types of things to be involved in.

What is a proudest moment?

My proudest moments are almost always when I get to help members. Whether it is something related to a life-cycle event, membership commitments or even just signing up to come to an event, there is no better feeling than helping people connect with their congregation.

The Role of Executive Director (ED)

Working in sacred partnership with the Board of Trustees and Senior Rabbi, the ED helps lead our congregation to a vibrant future as a high-functioning, successful progressive Jewish organization. The ED is responsible for oversight and management of the Temple's fiscal and administrative affairs, facility management, calendar, fundraising and communications. The ED serves as an ex-officio member of the Board of Trustees and the Executive Committee, attending all meetings, and plays a critical role as ambassador to Temple members and the broader Jewish and secular communities. The ED serves as an integral member of a collaborative Temple staff team.

A BIT MORE INSIGHT

Tell us about your family and pets:

My wife, Jennifer, and I have been married for 16 years and are huge animal lovers. We have two Standard Parti (multicolor) Poodles, two cockatoos and five backyard chickens.

I have two adult children, Gregory and Dara and an amazing 7-year-old grandson.

What are your hobbies?

I am an avid woodworker. I have found that woodworking is a great balance for me because after being with people all day long, I can put on my hearing protection and just enjoy time by myself in the shop.

The shop and dogs

What do you always carry with you?

I always wear a mezuzah that was my grandmother's. She and my grandfather were very important in my life and they taught me a great deal. My grandmother is one of the people who also showed me a love of music and singing.

I Was Just Thinking...

I don't know how many of you have a hobby, or a particular activity that you like to do regularly. For some, the really dedicated, the word so often associated with high levels of commitment to an activity, is "religiously" as in, "I work out at the gym religiously" or "painting is my religion". What a curious way to describe a commitment to an activity. If working out, painting, playing music, or sports, working at our vocations or anything but formal religious observance can be described as "religious" what could one activity be that would be described as normative activities for religion? Clearly, one of them is praying. Prayer is so universally understood to be an activity of the religiously observant, regardless of how broadly defined the religion may be, or how broadly defined the observance levels may be. As a Rabbi, I think that's a good thing.

So I am particularly puzzled and challenged each year, when confronted with the first Thursday in May, this year it falls on May 4th, which is designated by Congress as the National Day of Prayer. What is the National Day of Prayer and when did it start?

In 1952, evangelist Billy Graham led a six week religious campaign in Washington, D.C., holding events in the National Guard Armory and on the Capitol steps. The campaign culminated in a speech in which Graham called for a national day of prayer. He said, "Ladies and gentlemen, our Nation was founded upon God, religion and the church. What a thrilling, glorious thing it would be to see the leaders of our country today kneeling before Almighty God in prayer. What a thrill would sweep this country. What renewed hope and courage would grip the Americans at this hour of peril. We have dropped our pilot, the Lord Jesus Christ, and are sailing blindly on without a divine chart or compass, hoping somehow to find our desired haven. We have certain leaders who are rank materialists; they do not recognize God nor care for Him; they spend their time in one round of parties after another. The Capital City of our Nation can have a great spiritual awakening; thousands coming to Jesus Christ, but certain leaders have not lifted an eyebrow, nor raised a finger, nor showed the slightest bit of concern. Ladies and gentlemen, I warn you, if this state of affairs continues, the end of the course is national shipwreck and ruin."

After Graham's speech, Representative Percy Priest introduced a bill to establish a National Day of Prayer. In addressing the House of Representatives, he noted that the country had been "...challenged yesterday by the suggestion made on the east steps of the Capitol by Billy Graham that the Congress call on the President for the proclamation of a day of prayer." In support of the bill, Representative Brooks stated that "the national interest would be much better served if we turn aside for a full day of prayer for spiritual help and guidance from the Almighty during these troubled times. I hope that all denominations, Catholics, Jewish and Protestants, will join us in this day of prayer." On April 17, 1952, Congress passed Public Law 82- 324 which states: "The President shall set aside and proclaim a suitable day each year, other than a Sunday, as a National Day of Prayer, on which the people of the United States may turn to God in prayer and meditation at churches, in groups, and as individuals."

On May 5, 1988, Congress approved Public Law 100-307, "setting aside the first Thursday in May as the date on which the National Day of Prayer is celebrated." On May 9, 1988, President Ronald Reagan signed the bill into law. The current version of the statute reads, "The President shall issue each year a proclamation designating the first Thursday in May as a National Day of Prayer on which the people of the United States may turn to God in prayer and meditation at churches, in groups, and as individuals."

Presidents since Eisenhower have declared a day as National Prayer Day. President Reagan declared the first Thursday in May as National Prayer Day and President Obama declared May 7th as National Prayer Day. Interestingly, last year, President Obama did not host any event on that day, although he did make a formal proclamation, ostensibly concerned that our leader, in declaring such a day, might be construed as preferring one religion over the other. As Rabbi Brad Hirschfield notes, "On the other hand, it's a shame that we are so polarized on this issue that the President cannot host an event which is entirely consistent with both his personal practice and that of the vast majority of our nation's citizens. Not to mention that prayer, if not religion, is vital to the long-term health of any community.

No society has cultivated long-term success without nurturing in its members the ability to reflect and meditate on the most important issues of the day. And no society has maintained its strength without cultivating its citizens' capacity for gratitude. Those two issues are what prayer is all about. And God need not be a part of that for all Americans, even if it is for most of us. Perhaps the anxiety around this issue tells us more about who we are as a nation than it does about prayer.

In Hebrew, the word for praying is a reflexive verb. It defines an internal conversation that one has with one's self. To be sure, God has been a part of that conversation for most of those who pray. But the word itself proves that need not always be so. Perhaps the wisdom of this ancient tradition could serve as a model for our nation as well. It would assure the freedom of conscience to which we are all entitled while cultivating the kind of heightened awareness from which we all could benefit."

I for one make every day a prayer day and do not feel the need for a national call for such an endeavor. Perhaps this is a religious activity, in which we could partake as much as we do working out, playing sports or watching TV. Imagine the possibilities...

Rock This World

Presidential Nu's

Making your way in the world today takes everything you've got. Taking a break from all your worries sure would help a lot. Wouldn't you like to get away? Sometimes you want to go where everybody knows your name. And they're always glad you came. You want to be where you can see our troubles are all the same. You want to be where everybody knows your name.

Sure, if that sounds familiar, it is because it was the theme song from the old television series "Cheers" about a Boston pub and a cast of fun-loving, beer-drinking patrons. Every time its portly regular walked into the bar all the chatter stopped and everyone yelled "Norm!" It was a community where everyone came together for fellowship in a safe, welcoming environment to get away from work, from the crazy world around them, and to relax and enjoy the companionship of others looking for the same thing.

Cheers is Temple Shalom. It is a place on Friday where you can retreat to after work, nosh a little, be greeted by people who know your name (or at least your face, as I know I am the worst at names but good at faces), a place where you can sit, take a deep breath (or two), and enjoy a few minutes of peace from all your outside worries. That is exactly the community we are building. A place where you can put aside work and the outside politics and worldly craziness, and relax and enjoy yourself. Maybe play Mah Jongg. Maybe experience the music and warmth of services. Maybe you like Torah Study. Maybe you like yoga, or knitting, or singing, or Sisterhood, or Brotherhood, or gardening, or Munchkin Music. We offer a peaceful community where you can get away from the tumult of the everyday world and experience a little inner peace ... a little Shalom.

Temple Shalom is a welcoming community where we greet you at the door, introduce you to others, and we learn your name. If you have a friend or know someone who is in need of a little Shalom, please bring them by, introduce them to Temple Shalom. We have plenty of hospitality to share.

Project Legacy Is Here!

For those of you who still maintain long term memories, you might recall Project Legacy, an initiative introduced at Rosh Hashanah services, where you use your phone on a QR Code and you can learn more about our congregation and our building. Our Legacy Project committee has been hard at work researching and preparing the information, and now you will start seeing QR Codes around the building, teaching the reader more about our community and our history. So be on the lookout for QR codes around the temple!

If you are interested in joining the committee, please contact Mark Fishkind at mfishkind@sbcglobal.net.

As we enter the month of May we are preparing for our end to this year of learning. It has been a year filled with joy and wonder, with new friendships built and our holy community strengthened.

Together we have experienced the sweetness of Torah, celebrated the joy of our holidays and grappled with BIG QUESTIONS. We have baked together and sung together. We have created together and grown together.

We have planted seeds, both real and spiritual that will sustain us throughout a lifetime.

On Sunday May 7th we will celebrate the accomplishments of our 7th and 12th graders with gifts for them and a very special gift from our 7th grade class to our Temple Shalom community. We will share the sweetness of this year's learning with our annual visit from Tongue and Cheek Ice Cream and we will begin thinking together about new questions to explore in 5784!

Please join us in the Sanctuary at 11:30am on Sunday, May 7th for our congregational slide show and a special ceremony.

New Nationwide Online Reporting System for threats or suspicious activity relation to Jewish organizations or communities.

Once a report is made, security agents determine the urgency and, if necessary, work with the FBI or other law enforcement partners.

The information from the reports can also be used to keep better data on incidents, learn who is behind the threats, and track cases across communities. People can use their computers, tablets or cell phone to fill out the reports.

OMBUDSMAN

If you have a question, comment, or complaint regarding something at Temple Shalom you logically might raise your issue with Rabbi Paley, President Eichelbaum, a member of our Executive Committee, or a staff member. However, if you would like an independent channel to look into your issue then our ombudspersons are the place to go. Our two ombudspersons are Myron Schwitzer and Lory Kohleriter. They each have been members of our temple community for over 50 years and are very knowledgeable about a lot of Temple details. They may be able to give you a response for your issue when you contact them, but, more than likely they will want to research it so they can get back to you with a fully developed response.

Please reach out to them at ombudsperson@templeshalomdallas.org if you prefer to go to someone not aligned with the issue you wish to discuss.

Of Blessed Memory...
